The Ruling Elite Two

War creates famine due to the cessation of transportation and agricultural production. The victorious nations are those who have superior weaponry purchased by the unwitting taxpayers from the banker-controlled corporations. The lawyers, during the peace process, reward the victorious nations with spoils, reparations payments, and the right to occupy the vanquished nation with military bases and troops. Wars cause unnecessary long-term resentment among populations.

The Khazars adamantly rejected assimilation in order to retain their unique identity preferring to live in ghettos instead. The rabbis realized that they would lose their power over their people if they accepted other authorities.

Until first Rothschild came along, Palestine was always considered Christian Holy Land.

Hexagram came in 1822 through the Rothschild's it was used by ancient pagans

“a land without a people.. a people without a land”- zionist slogan in 1880

B’nai B’rith 1850 started anti-Semitism

12 Disraeli himself stated the Jews are the ones who give out the loans for war

They wanted to get Jews integrated into society so they could run it in the future 1850.

Moses Hess formulated the "Socialist" ideology. In an 1845 article, “About the Monetary System,” He said that the Jews’ function was to change mankind into a savage animal.

According to Baruch, Jews would control the world, all resources (through socialism), merge the races, abolish borders, eliminate the royal families, and establish the zionist state.

The Ottoman government burdened itself with £191 million through thirteen additional loans, with interest rates between 10 and 21 percent (Crimean War).

29 PDA practically bankrupted the Ottoman Empire It collected revenues on certain products, such as salt and tobacco, to pay the foreign debt, which reduced Turkey to an economic vassal state and stripped it of sovereignty. The PDA could, if necessary, use military force to guarantee government compliance.

Kaiser Wilhelm II rejected the idea of sponsoring a Jewish homeland in his meeting with Herzl

On March 5, 1883, the government, in an attempt to block Jewish land purchases in Palestine, passed a law to prevent them from acquiring any land there. However, this law failed to restrict Jewish residents from buying land on behalf of zionist colonizers. They simply purchased and registered the land in their names. The Ottoman Land Code allowed property ownership in other parts of the Empire, except Arabia.

Herzl in 1896, offering £20 million to the Sultan Abdulhamid II, received this response-“If Herr Herzl is as much your friend as you are mine, advise him not to take another step in this matter. I cannot relinquish a square foot of land, for it does not belong to me, but to my people. My people have conquered and fortified this empire with their blood. As long as we are alive, I will not permit a vivisection."

German zionists funded Ottoman Empire during the 1897 war with Greece in a way of peace offerings.

The sultan refused to open Palestine, but offered the Jews Mesopotamia, Syria, and Anatolia. Herzl, with additional leverage, rejected the offer.112 Negotiations ended in 1902, without resolution. Sultan wanted the Jews to give all of the gold mines in Ottoman land sold for their own control.

The other European countries accused Britain of using the Jews to increase their control in Palestine. The Ottomans viewed them as “another advance guard of further political European influence in the Ottoman Empire.”

In the first place, there are 14,000,000 Jews, and Palestine would not accommodate more than one-third of that number. Palestine was overpopulated at that time.

Experts estimated the chemical and mineral wealth of the Dead Sea to have a proven value of $5 trillion (1947 money).

Herzl in 1905 favored Uganda—not instead of Palestine, but as progress toward that destination. When Herzl and Litman Rosenthal discussed it afterward, he told Rosenthal, “There is a difference between the final aim and the ways we have to go to achieve this aim.”

Wolffsohn- In his closing remarks, he pleaded for “greater unity among the Jews” and said that eventually “they must conquer the world.”

Brandeis- "will likewise be a better man and a better American for doing so. There is no inconsistency between loyalty to America and loyalty to Jewry.”

By 1880, JD Rockefeller was refining 95 percent of the nation’s oil.

“Those who control education will over a period of several generations control a nation.”---Harvard, Yale, Columbia

By 1888, the Senate Committee on Education produced a 1,382 page document to define the purpose of mass education—impose conformity and subordination and restrain natural curiosity through an “anti-intellectual shift in schooling” under compulsory, regulatory standards.180

"The present educational conventions (intellectual and character education) fade from our minds, and, unhampered by tradition, we work our own good will upon a grateful and responsive folk. We shall not try to make these people or any of their children into philosophers or men of learning or men of science. ...We shall not search for embryo great artists, painters, musicians, nor lawyers, doctors, preachers, politicians, statesmen, of whom we have ample supply" JD Rockefeller letter in 1906

Sigmund Freud, a member of B’nai B’rith

Rockefeller gave his foundation $100 million in its first year of operation, 1913. The elite transfer their funds into tax-exempt foundations, similar to taking money from one pocket and putting it into another pocket to escape taxes and to further grind the face of the poor by controlling and directing domestic and foreign policy. It's not charity.

74 John Dewey, a statist, believed that a child exists exclusively for the benefit of the state, which requires the suppression of individual interests, skills, and propensities. Thus, students receive only approved knowledge.

Students are to adapt and become well adjusted (conditioned) in order to function in society, not as an individual but as part of the herd.

Communist Manifesto, which advocates a “free education for all children in public schools, abolition of children’s factory labor in its present form, and a combination of education with industrial production.”

In 1882, Chinese arrivals totaled 39,579, which generated anti-Chinese riots by infuriated white laborers on the Pacific coast, who now had to compete with cheaper labor.

“American institutions rest solely on good citizenship.” People who had a background of self-government created them. He endorsed “restricted immigration,” in keeping with America’s capacity to absorb immigrants willing to practice good citizenship. He said, “Those who do not want to be partakers of the American spirit ought not to settle in America.”---Calvin Coolidge 1923

91 With all the producers under one management, they would manipulate the price, as Rockefeller had done with oil, to downgrade the quality of those brands. In 1898, the legitimate distillers tried to establish such a conglomerate, the Kentucky Distillers, to counter the onslaught of imitation whiskey.

The Jewish controllers focused on selling their debauched liquor in quantity, including selling the cheap barrelhouse at cut-rate prices. Many Jews became saloon owners and the number of dives selling barrel-house increased. Soon, there was a widespread wave of vice in various parts of the country, which people could not explain. However, the people behind it knew the cause.

Give me your tired, your poor,"----poem written by Emma Lazarus (Khazar) in 1903. Now engraved in the statue of liberty.

1965 Lyndon Johnson bill made for no quotas on immigrant based on ethnic background

One might also accuse the leaders of multinational corporations whose greed for profit is "stronger than nationalism."

Nationalists believe in reasonable tariffs that protect the nation’s industry rather than free trade.

Karl Marx advocated both the income tax and free trade because, he said, “it breaks up old nationalities” and eliminates the “bourgeoisie.”

Albert Einstein, an ardent globalist, said, “Nationalism is an infantile disease. It is the measles of mankind.”

Nationalists have no imperialistic designs, nor do they engage in aggressive warfare, but rather respect the nationalistic endeavors of other countries. Imperialists criticize nationalism because it obstructs their exploitative objectives to bring all nations into one “Global Plantation” under their rule.

Blacks were forbidden to migrate up to the North after the civil war.

Planned Parenthood created in 1906 used to exterminate the poor by preventing reproduction so the poor could "get out of poverty." It was used to exterminate blacks

Sidney Hillman- communist agent sent in during 1924, served on FDR's staff.

119 three million Marxists came over by 1924. This helped FDR win 9.1 million to 8.5 million votes

McKinley worked for Sugar Trust

In 1890, they thought that sending Blacks to Cuba would Americanize Cuba.

Havemeyers owned 98% of sugar by 1907

144 USA staged coup in Hawaii in 1893 by allowing sugar imports from around the world. They claimed the need for democracy in Hawaii. This quickly crippled Hawaii's economy. They did not inform the 40k Native Hawaiians but they did inform 33k Asians and Whites. America claimed that Japan and Britain were colonizing it. Hawaiians never wanted to be annexed to America.

Monroe Doctrine in 1823 stated that no European power would have control over South America/ Pacific

Fish wanted to pay $100 million to Spain for Cuba’s independence to avoid a war, as he did not favor annexation predicated on his racial views.

Some Rebel Cubans purchased a US steamer, Virginius, registered it in the United States, and deceptively flew the US flag while supplying contraband to the Cuban rebels.

USS Maine explosion blamed on Spain in Cuba, 50k reward for whoever found out who did it.

Blacks banned from military until WWII.

US corporations were looking for ways to seize productive land and control in Cuba. They ultimately achieved this through the Platt Amendment on March 2, 1901. Guantanamo Bay enabled the US to control the Caribbean Islands.

United Fruit began expanding its potential supply sources and purchased more property in Santo Domingo, Honduras, Guatemala, and Panama, as well as more acreage in Colombia, Nicaragua, Cuba, and Jamaica creating railroads and ports for cane and bananas.

The US government sent troops in 1906, 1912, 1917, and 1920 to halt the justifiable uprisings against US control over the Cuban economy. The Cubans rebelled against this injustice, and Congress finally repealed the Platt Amendment in 1934.

In retaliation, President Roosevelt, controlled by private interests, deployed the US Navy's Caribbean Squadron to Dominican waters. SDIC's private interests and Washington's Caribbean policy was instituted in 1904, supported by US warships.440 People deceptively refer to that policy, still current, as "national interests.

184 However, the document extended US military control, with 75,000 troops by 1899 and, within a few years, 126,000 men. It arrogantly granted military dominion over the entire country in fulfillment of the rights of US sovereignty for the Philippines.

The historian and diplomat George F. Kennan blamed US imperialism on the American people, who wanted to see the US flag flying on distant tropical isles and to bask in the "sunshine of recognition as a great imperial power." He did not mention the thousands of Americans who opposed both the war and a US empire. Somehow, he claimed, the leaders just could not resist the citizen's demands.

One squad killed more than 1,000 "dark-skinned" Filipinos in just one village. General MacArthur defended his army's civilian massacres as "carrying out the civilizing mission of its Aryan ancestors."

The US military killed at least 100,000 just in the Panay Campaign, the Samar Campaign, and the Batangas Campaign, which all occurred after Bell's interview with The Times. Further, it did not include the post-war period when the United States incarcerated 300,000 people in Albay. One must conclude that the United States killed more than one million Filipinos in their effort to "liberate" and subdue them.

Before the US invasion, they had been a major rice exporter. The army reopened the ports in May 1901.

Without any tariff protections, the US politicians, deliberately or inadvertently, targeted the Philippine manufacturing industry for destruction, the exact same reason for the destruction in the US manufacturing through free trade. Quezon (2nd president) warned of this.

220 The Philippines is a classic case of the development of underdevelopment. The export business depended on four crops— sugar, coconuts, hemp fiber, and tobacco. About 60 percent of their export earnings came from sugar, and 20 percent of their imports were foodstuffs —cocoa, coffee, eggs, fish, meat, and rice—all of which people could have produced locally, if the elite had not dominated the land for sugar production. Now, merchants imported huge quantities of rice, a staple, as well as cotton products, although the islands were quite capable of growing and processing their own cotton. Duty-free products were not allowed.

Kitchener was a freemason; a fellowship whose upper echelon appears to support genocide. The whole point of the Boer War was to enable Britain to seize South Africa's mineral wealth. In 1886, explorers had discovered massive gold deposits in the South African Republic, which immediately drew British interests to that country

On April 7, 1785, Professor Vitus Renner, had said, "The Illuminati fear nothing more than to be known under their right name. They hide under the cloak of freemasonry."

Rockefeller's Standard Oil treasurer, Charles Pratt, bestowed his New York mansion to the CFR to use as its world headquarters.

Since the Rockefeller Empire was in Ohio, it is not surprising that Ohio was the pinnacle of nineteenth-century politics. Between 1869 and 1901, five out of seven presidents, all Republicans, came from Ohio—Ulysses S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield, William H. Harrison, and William McKinley.

Between 1895 and 1896, the United States and Britain almost came to blows over a longtime territorial dispute between Venezuela and British Guiana. Venezuelan officials granted concessions to US businesses in the gold fields in the disputed area. Theodore Roosevelt, then president of the Board of New York City Police Commissioners, was prepared to go to war. The United States could have held British Canada hostage, so the two countries negotiated. Britain would stay out of Latin America and would share whatever Asian resources they acquired through military force with the United States.

Within five years, Rockefeller was selling millions of gallons of oil and making millions of dollars and paying huge dividends, as much as 50 percent. By 1879, he would control about 90 percent of the US refining business and every important pipeline in the oil fields

With a holding company, companies bought each other's stock and camouflaged the actual ownership of many firms. Further, larger, wealthier companies maneuvered and controlled prices, upset competition, and then acquired their rival's companies.

Devised underproduction increases profits and creates shortages, a hardship for consumers, while calculated overproduction eliminates beleaguered, underfunded competitors.

Socialism allows the monopolists to control the material products "resulting from the toil of the people, the right to charge for the use of this material and to make of us industrial slaves. They are practical socialists in the interests of the few."- Charles Lindbergh

In 1906, there were 160 medical schools in America. By 1920, there were eighty-five and by 1944, there were only sixty-nine medical schools in the country. This was caused by Rockefeller and Abraham Flexner.

261 Andrew Carnegie, a Pilgrims Society member, wrote, "To leave monopolists in control would not be tolerated by the people, therefore, there must be control and that control, as far as one sees, must be in the hands of the general government."

Given the vast amounts of money missing from the Pentagon, immediately before 9/11.

People accused Carnegie of supplying inferior armor to the navy for US warships, for which officials heavily fined the company. Carnegie made every attempt to keep this information from the public

The ABA urged students who were associated with the B’nai B’rith Hillel Foundations located on 250 colleges throughout the United States to enter banking.

Aldrich and Warburg, Henry P. Davison, Benjamin Strong, Frank A. Vanderlip, all Pilgrims Society members, and Charles D. Norton, attended.

288 Now, all assets held in collateral, by the Federal Reserve, including Social Security number holders and their assets, back Federal Reserve Notes. The Federal Reserve’s assets as of November 14, 2007, per their reports, totaled $925,309,000,000.

The FR Act required national and state banks to buy shares in their regional FR Bank in order to join the System. The eight nationally-chartered banks that Mullins named were within the New York Federal district, and, as such, were required to buy stock in that entity, and were, as he argued, probably the primary shareholders.

Jews were predominate in opium trafficking. In April 1884, out of 3,763 containers of opium headed for China, Jewish traders owned 2,918 chests. David Sassoon owned 1,040 while Calcutta merchants owned a total of 1,878.

Nasser al-Din Shah Qajar, the King of Persia (1848-1896) compensated for the territorial loss to Russia by seizing Herāt, Afghanistan (1856). Britain regarded the move as a threat to British India and declared war on Iran, forcing the return of Herāt as well as Iranian recognition of the kingdom of Afghanistan.

Friedrich Engels viewed the British occupation of Egypt, actually under Turkish jurisdiction, as in the pursuit of human interests.

On December 24, 1927, the Standard Oil plant, on the outskirts of Tientsin, caught fire during a battle between rival Chinese forces. The U.S. government had supported with troops and had endangered the lives of those marines to protect Standard Oil. Author of War is a Racket (1935), Butler died unexpectedly on June 21, 1940 at the Naval Hospital in Philadelphia. Popular military leaders who criticize the use of the military to protect corporate profits often die unexpectedly, particularly when they are receiving care in government facilities.

Herbert H. Kitchener used the scorched earth policy in the Second Boer War and destroyed farms and homes to prevent rebels from obtaining food and supplies.

At the end of a 10-hour day, laborers had to climb a ladder 1,000 feet out of the damp mines. They would receive two meager meals per day, and earn twenty-five cents a day, worth about five cents in China. They could not leave the compound without a permit. If they survived for three years, their masters would ship them back to China. Sponsored by Hebert Hoover.

335 Frank A. Vanderlip (Citibank) compared Lenin to George Washington.

Jacob Meckel (Prussian) introduced Clausewitz's military theories, the Prussian concept of war games, and made numerous recommendations. Thereafter, Japan reorganized the command structure of the army, and strengthened their transportation infrastructure. In 1873, Japan's newly-appointed War Minister, Yamagata Aritomo introduced universal military conscription.

Because of these prior confrontations with America and Japan, the Koreans would inevitably shoot at all approaching foreign ships. Perhaps to provoke an incident, Commander Inoue launched a small boat, allegedly in search of drinkable water.

On February 8, 1904, without a declaration of war, Japan attacked Russian ships at Port Arthur and Incheon. Roosevelt anxiously awaited Japan's invasion, and even bragged that he "would not hesitate to give Japan something more than moral support against Russia." Unfortunately, and probably purposefully, Russia failed to receive timely armament deliveries, which greatly affected their defense capabilities. Warfare decimated her economy, preparatory to the Marxist revolution in 1905.

Britain after the war demanded that Russia abandon the Kwantung Peninsula, territory leased from China six years before. Russia had already spent $300 million on improvements.

Whoever controlled the railways controlled the area's political and economic future. Mesopotamia was far too important now that oil had become an economic factor. Britain charged fees for everytime a boat passed one of their sea controlled areas.

384 Balfour: “That would mean lowering our standard of living. Perhaps, it would be simpler for us to have a war.” “Is it a question of right or wrong? Maybe it is just a question of keeping our supremacy.”

Khazars created a "state within a state" in Russia by not assimilating and by doing business internationally through it.

Alexander II attempted to immobilize the terrorist's (Marxists) hostility by permitting even greater concessions. However, on the day that he proposed his latest resolution, March 13, 1881, after four earlier attempts, the terrorists, the very people he was trying to help, murdered him. The government hung many of the Narodnaya Volya leaders, most of whom were Jews, which left the group without strong effective leaders.

State of Duma (legislative committee) was created in Russia as a response to the labor protests in order to give workers voices and the development of political parties.

Wilson publicly endorsed Morgan following the banker-orchestrated crash of 1907. He said, “All this trouble could be averted if we appointed a committee of six or seven public-spirited men like J. P. Morgan to handle the affairs of our country.” Politically, Harvey supported Wilson while Rockefeller supplied the money. Cleveland H. Dodge, J. Ogden Armour, James A. Stillman, George F. Baker, Jacob H. Schiff, Bernard Baruch, Henry Morgenthau, Sr., and Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of The New York Times also supported Wilson.

423 In 1831-1832, Mazzini, a Marxist, organized Young Italy, a Masonic organization of males, ages sixteen to twenty. They robbed banks, performed high-level assassinations, kidnappings for ransom, and they demanded “protection money” from numerous businessmen to prevent the thugs from burning or bombing their buildings. They called themselves “Mazzini’s Association for Insurrection and Assassination later shortened to MAFIA, perhaps the first Political Action Group. Organized crime and politics have long been associated in nearly every country.

While the bankers sought the passage of the Federal Reserve Act, they pretended to oppose it to keep the public from suspecting that they were behind it.

In June 1881, Obrenović signed a secret agreement with Austria-Hungary, vowing that Serbia would not act against the interests of Austria-Hungary in Bosnia and Herzegovina, and would not make political agreements with other countries.

"There were few citizens who could claim any knowledge of European affairs of state who had any interests in them." -Colonel House

British officials knew that there were U-boats in that shipping lane and deliberately withdrew the destroyer escorts. Additionally, a U-boat had recently sunk two ships, the Candidate and the Centurion, in the same path in which the Lusitania was traveling. Britain's Lusitania, then the world's largest and fastest passenger ship deceptively flew the US flag.

They made certain that Germany did not receive foodstuffs. Yet the international law dictated that belligerent governments allow the passage of all food destined for civilian populations.

The British government borrowed the Lusitania, equipped it with bases for mounting guns and reclassified it as an auxiliary cruiser.

Wilson deceptively told Congress that Americans had died when the Sussex sank, when in fact; people had towed it into a French port.

The Hague Convention explicitly allows only recognizable soldiers, not civilians, to bear arms and engage in combat. The civilian use of a weapon was and is justification for execution.

Hoover and others, sold food to Germany (truce offering in 1916), just to prolong the war, at a time when Germany attempted to halt the war due to its inability to feed the nation.

Before the Russo Turkish War, those revolutionaries began slaughtering Bulgarian Muslims.

Propagandists colored the Armenians as a persecuted minority attempting to exist. They always described them as poor, innocent, and martyred, yet they prospered in the Ottoman society because they controlled a large part of the economy. Ottoman laws guaranteed equal rights to Jews and Christians who became very influential in numerous official positions. They had greater autonomy and freedom than the Muslims because Europeans demanded exclusivity for Christians.

478 The Armenians, despite their abundant advantages, rebelled against the Ottoman Empire following the invasion of the Russians into the Caucasian Muslim lands during the Russo-Turkish War

In 1893, hostilities erupted in Anatolia with skirmishes between armed Armenians and Muslims. Rumors abounded among the Muslims that the Armenians were going to rebel, causing the Kurdish militia to attack, kill, and plunder them. The Armenians retaliated by withholding their taxes, payable to the Kurds and the empire. The local governor, with Abdülhamid's approval, declared that the Armenians were in a state of rebellion and authorized the Hamidiye to attack, resulting in a series of massacres (1894-1896), over which the Ottoman officials had little control, until Western authorities pressured them to use the Ottoman army to intervene.

The fighting between the Muslims and the Armenians was vicious, and thousands perished. Those who fled often starved or died from disease because when the Russians seized the Van and Bitlis Provinces, they prohibited the Armenians from returning because they wanted the land for themselves. The Armenians fled to Russia when the Ottomans recaptured the area. The Armenians, who remained, especially in Erzurum Province, slaughtered the Muslims residing there, toward the end of the war. Muslims were poor compared to the Christians and Jews living within the Ottoman Empire.

The Ottoman Empire attacked Russia for control over the Black Sea. Most of the congress did not want war but Enver did. Because of many young men entering war, this wrecked their harvest for a year.

Not surprisingly, after World War II, the Allies discovered documents in the German Foreign Office that purportedly confirmed that Imperial Germany had financed the Bolsheviks.

548 Mustafa Kemal (freemason) falsified population and other statistics while Talaat Pasha transmitted deceptive telegrams. Talaat created fraudulent reports in a Blue Book, and in court records. Because of this genocide, Turkish officials would have to create an Armenian state with specific borders in an area populated by twice as many Turkish citizens as the total number of Armenians in the world.

Paul M. Warburg, Vice Governor Federal Reserve Board- 1495 Warburg relinquished his $500,000 a year job at Kuhn, Loeb to accept the paltry $12,000 a year job as governor of the Federal Reserve.

On March 7, 1918, the Senate passed the bill, which authorized the extension of $4 billion in credit to firms and corporations engaged in war-related industries. It became illegal in 1939.

The occupants of Lenin’s train, of the 165 names published, twenty-three were Russian, three were Georgian, four were Armenian, one was a German, and 128 were Jewish.

President Wilson sent a telegram addressed to the Soviet Congress which read, “Let me take the opportunity on the occasion of this Soviet gathering to express the sincere sympathy felt by the American people for the Russian People. The American people are heartily with the Russian people in its determination to be forever free of autocratic government and to be master of its own destiny.”

583 In 1910, Vladimir Lenin and Leon Trotsky participated in the International Masonic Conference in Copenhagen, where the Socialization of Europe was part of the presentation.

The peasantry, who grew the grain, had higher food costs without a corresponding increase in the wholesale price, through intermediaries, of their produce. Rather than relinquishing it, the farmers hoarded their grain or simply returned to subsistence farming in an attempt to meet their own needs. Hence, food was in short supply in urban areas, in addition to increasing prices, which, like a domino effect, provoked factory workers to demand higher wages. In January and February 1916, socialist propaganda and well-placed agitators triggered pervasive strikes, creating mass unrest and mounting criticism of the government.

Following the revolution, Russia was the first country in the world to make anti-Semitism a crime. On July 27, 1918, Lenin outlawed all anti-Semitism, a law, if broken, might result in execution.

In the 1930s, Marietta Shaginyan, a writer, discovered that Lenin was Jewish and certain individuals instructed her not to publicize this state secret. In 1935, the court ruled anti-Semitism a penal offense.

The Hungarian Commissariat consisted of twenty-six, eighteen of who were Jewish freemasons, a disproportionate number given the size of the Jewish population in Hungary, 1.5 million out of 22 million.

On August 5, 1919, Trotsky issued a memo stating, “The road to Paris and London lies through the cities of Afghanistan, Punjab, and Bengal.” On March 6, 1920, Lenin said, “Victory will be ensured in the not-too distant future.” Lenin prepared to invade India. Trotsky thought it essential to have an Asian command center from which to conduct a revolution in India, in conjunction with, and support of local revolutionaries. While the Bolsheviks wanted to immediately initiate another world war, the Russians were engaged in a civil war (1918-1919). Because they were expending the nation’s resources on fighting against dissident Russians, they were unable to initiate another world war. Moreover, Trotsky and Lenin could not send financing to the communist leaders they had installed in Central European countries nor could they send the Red Army to Germany.

In 1915, Dr. Weizmann already knew what would occur in the next twenty years following the war. The British would establish a protectorate and the Jews would take over the country, as anticipated by the mandate system, the devious system legalized by the League of Nations, a body concocted by freemasons. They devised this system of governing a conquered territory with Palestine as their target.

628 David Kahn wrote a 1,000-page plus book, The Codebreakers, published in 1967. In chapter nine, he described how the British deciphered code 7500 but he mistakenly refers to it as 0075 (as Tuchman did), perhaps to confuse the issue. He wrote a second edition (1996) but did not amend chapter nine. He claims the British somehow broke the code. Kahn also claims, “to this day no one knows why Zimmermann admitted it.” (Those two contradict each other, Zimmerman wouldn't admit to it since he would be caught). In as much as Zimmermann acted on his own without the knowledge of the German government, German officials investigated the matter and called him to testify before the Reichstag where they compelled him to confess.

The winners write the history according to the unspoken but understood policies of the American Historical Association. Many influential tax-exempt foundations fund that association. That means they are government owned. If they were privatized there would be room for disagreement. Not to say there is no disagreement amongst some of the historians but when it is published, they only go with one perspective.

644 Effective January 1, 2006, the Smithsonian restricted access to its archives and its scientists to Redstone’s Showtime Network. Prior to this exclusive contract, all filmmakers relied on the vast holdings of the archives to produce accurate historical pieces. Millions of viewers now view history according to Showtime’s version of history. Showtime has full access to millions of historical documents, films, photographs and thousands of hours of recordings unavailable anywhere else in the world. One has to obtain permission from Showtime, the Smithsonian’s new collaborator, to access these resources.

Lenin’s plans fell apart, and he was about to have the anti-communist Germans too close to home. They would stop his revolution so he was ready to sign anything as long as he could retain part of Russia as a base. Trotsky wanted to fight but finally agreed with Lenin that they should sign the treaties. Lenin viewed this as a defeat but had no choice. It was either peace with Germany or extinction.

Governments that are almost certain to be victorious during a war must justify their warfare intentions to the citizens (because they win the war and it looks suspicious what's in it for them). Governments do everything possible to subvert anti-war sentiments including formulating a sub-culture of problematic pacifists, like the anti-war drug culture of the 1960s, so that the majority of the population would predictably marginalize authentic pacifists who resist war for moral reasons. This means don't be a pacifist, that's what they want; they want anti war people because those who want war in office claim they are "fighting for your freedoms and to defend others who live under tyrants." That's four false narratives you are getting from the TV box- one pacifist, two oil interests (hegemony), three for freedom (democracy, republic, open markets), and four to keep others safe. All four of which are lies because they help promote their system and to unite the world to get what they want. The anti war pacifists people are never against civil wars and arming groups so they don't help stop these wars. These are all choices they are giving you. That's like ordering at a restaurant but all four dishes aren't what was advertised, you expect your money back. If someone working for them speaks out who has enough supporters, they will tell them "shut up." They are expanding in the Middle East whether they will tell you outright or not, this cannot change and choices they decide are not the answers, these four choices don't help you at all. They will only make people overseas hate you, doing so only helps them hate you more, you are admitting to this that you are ok with it if you chose any of the four choices, that's terrible ethics on your part. Or you simply don't care but would if it happened to you.

Germans, already starving, were required to surrender their remaining livestock—they had to deliver their cattle, sheep, goats, pigs and even their dairy cows to France and Belgium. The confiscation of Germany’s coal resources caused the deaths of German children who were not only starving but would now freeze to death without a source of heat.

The kingpins would control China for opium sales. This made a great case for the Communist Party in China because they promised to shut them down, unify China, and fight the imperialists (though they themselves are imperialist).

723 Consequently, they removed millions of acres from food production. China, short of food, was already struggling to feed its people. Choosing opium over food production caused a genocidal famine that led to the deaths of at least 6,000,000 peasants in four provinces, killing a third of the population in the Shaanxl Province between 1928 and 1933.

On April 5, 1933, because of the stipulations in the Emergency Banking Act, Roosevelt made it illegal for citizens to own gold. He ordered people to turn in all gold coins, gold bullion, and gold certificates to the FR banks by May 1 (Illuminati was created on May 1, 1776). Baruch, the single greatest holder of gold bricks, retained possession of his gold.
